Dear Ms/Mr,

I am interested in the front end website development or software development position. I am currently employed as safety engineer. The reason I want to change my career start from 2017, me and my other two friends have an idea of building and android apps called "Sport League Apps", it's an apps about match making any user with other player with similar sport to play the sport together. But the project was never complete due to lack of skill, experience and no mentor.

Even the project never finish I still continue to learn programming until today. From android apps using java and android studio to website development using CSS, HTML, JavaScript and React framework. I have zero IT working experience but I'm expose to the technology since 2017 until present.

I am confident if I were given the opportunity to involve in software development project, I can learn really quickly and adapt very fast because it's not my first time coding. I believe with the right guidance from mentor I can progress efficiently. I have basic coding fundamental such as loop, array, variable, object, DOM, react hooks.

I have also enclosed my resume. I look forward to become your apprentice and commit my time to learn with you.

Sincerely,

Ashraf Bin Che Azemi
